

External Appointments Guidebook

Updated September 14, 2026

1. Law Society External Appointments: Policy and Process

1.1. Law Society External Appointments Policy

The objective of the Law Society Appointments Policy is “... to ensure that well-qualified persons with the requisite character, knowledge, expertise, willingness and ability to undertake the duties of the position are appointed.” The Appointments Policy outlines various selection and appointment guidelines.

1.2. Term of office

Subject to the constitutional documents of the external organization, Law Society appointments to any position will normally not exceed a total period of six years. An initial appointment to a position should not create an expectation of automatic reappointment.

1.3. Benchers or non-Benchers

A Bencher should be appointed to an outside body only if that body’s legislation or by-laws require that the Law Society appointee be a Bencher. In all other cases there is a presumption against appointing Benchers to other bodies. An example of a circumstance in which that presumption might be rebutted is in the case of a newly created body, where it might be desirable to appoint a Bencher for the first one or two terms, or until the body’s procedures are well established.

1.4. Geographic considerations

The Law Society considers geographical representation when making appointments to organizations which have a province-wide scope.

1.5. Diversity and Equity

The Benchers believe that the Law Society's mandate to protect the public interest in the administration of justice is best served by leadership with diverse backgrounds and experiences. Diversity that brings the skills and richness of talent reflected in the peoples of British Columbia strengthens our legal community and the community at large. All lawyers who meet the qualifications and want to contribute to the profession are encouraged to apply. We particularly encourage Indigenous lawyers, racialized lawyers, 2SLGBTQI+ lawyers, lawyers with (dis)abilities, young lawyers, solicitors, and lawyers from big firms¹ to achieve adequate representation of the talents and strengths of all British Columbians.

1.6. Appointment of judges

Where the legislation or by-laws of the body permit, judges are eligible to be appointed to positions by the Law Society.

¹ Lawyers from big firms are included in this section, as this is often a gap on a number of the boards of external bodies to which the Law Society makes appointments, and is included on the skills matrix or other materials that these external bodies provide to the Law Society for considering in reviewing potential appointees.

2. Law Society Appointments Process

The Executive Committee considers and makes recommendations regarding all Law Society external appointments and nominations.

The Executive Committee strives to ensure that its recommendations for appointment or nomination to the Law Society's appointing authority (the Benchers, the Executive Committee or the President) are well informed, appropriately considered and timely, and in accordance with the Law Society's Appointments Policy. Additionally, the Executive Committee aims to consider candidates who meet the criteria and requirements of the external body(ies) to which they are being considered for appointment, so as to ensure that the appointees are able to contribute significantly to the board of the external body to which they are being appointed.

A list of current Law Society appointments is included as Appendix A.

3. Expectations of External Bodies

As part of the appointments process, external bodies are expected to provide to the Law Society, at least three potential candidates to be considered for each open appointment, along with a board matrix or other materials that provide clear criteria regarding the required skills and experience needed on the board. External bodies are also expected to provide information regarding how the potential candidates meet these criteria, along with a recommendation as to which candidate would best meet the requirements of that particular external body. The Law Society will contact external bodies in advance of when a new appointment is required to provide timelines and an overview of the required information.

4. Expressions of Interest

Individuals who wish to express their interest in being considered as an appointee or nominee are encouraged to submit an online application for consideration on the Law Society website: www.lawsociety.bc.ca.

The online expressions of interest form can be found under About Us > Volunteers and Appointments > Apply Online for Consideration. Applicants are requested to submit a current resume, a brief expression of interest, and an outline of related skills and experience demonstrating how they meet the criteria for a particular appointment. Applicants are also asked to indicate the organizations and appointments of particular interest to them.

We will keep each applicant's expression of interest and related information for one year from the date of submission, or until the date a resulting appointment takes effect, whichever comes first. You will be contacted if you are short-listed for an upcoming appointment or nomination.

If you have questions about Law Society appointments to other organizations, please contact BencherRelations@lsbc.org.
